| Qualification conferred | Bachelor of Humanities in Turkish Philology |
| Program Volume in Credits | 240 credits |
| Aim of the Educational Program | In the modern world political, economic and cultural interests towards the oriental countries is increasing day by day. That is preconditioned by the growing potential and role of these countries in solving global problems. Today the research and learning centers of Turkish studies are opened in those countries and universities of the western world where there used to be no such interest before. The present Georgian-Turkish social-economic relations as well as the Turkish investments in Georgia caused the increased demand for the specialists of Turkish language. At the Shota Rustaveli State University, the educational program of Turkish philology has been functioning since 1994. The BA program prepares highly qualified specialists of Turkish language and literature for the professional and research activities that are based on obtaining general humanitarian and general philological knowledge. Graduates of the educational program possess deep knowledge of Turkish philology based on corresponding textbooks and comprising the leading aspects of the field. Apart from specialists, the program implies formation of a free personality with high civic awareness and activity, humanism, democracy and principles of liberal values |
