The Program Goals

Development of modern society is impossible without harmonious interrelations between the nature and human society. Hence, it is essential to prepare such specialists who will be able to provide description-evaluation of natural and social-economic complexes as well as will be the mediator between the nature and community/society. It is the system of geographical sciences that plays the greatest part in understanding these relations as it studies the organization of objects and systems and space-time aspects of functioning; peculiarities of natural landscape formation as a result of endogenous and exogenous processes taking place within the Earth's crust as well as the development dynamics of the results of human economic impact in this environment; provides the education of a personality with high national and universal values, and the skills of applying the knowledge in everyday life.

One of the main goals of geography is to understand natural processes through the multi- and interdisciplinary approaches towards the earth and its systems. Apart from theoretical knowledge, it is based on field practices that enable students to gather materials independently, make analysis and apply them in practical work.
